The Literacy Program at St Joseph's

Reading

The Literacy program at St. Joseph's focuses on the four modes of language: Reading and Viewing, Writing, Speaking and Listening. The program has been developed in light of the Victorian Curriculum and other initiatives that support students in developing literacy for life-long learning.

Over the past few years we have been moving to a reading instruction which is centred around the 'Science of Reading' and Structured Literacy. The Science of Reading is based around vast amounts of research which identifies how we learn to read. We understand that not all students learn to read easily and that reading is an extremely complex skill requiring consistent effective teaching. We provide an environment where we students are supported to read based on evidence based practice. In our classrooms, we centre our reading program around the explicit, direct instruction of the following pillars of reading:

1. Oral language

2. Phonemic awareness

3. Phonics

4. Fluency

5. Vocabulary

6. Comprehension

Each of these pillars build upon each other with the goal being that students can competently read and comprehend the text that they are reading. To complement the teaching of these components we implement the Letters and Sounds scope and sequence. This ensures students are systematically taught phonics. This sequence is taught consistently throughout our school and becomes a key component of students ability to both read and write. Similarly, our junior school uses the Heggerty program to assist with students' understanding of phonemic awareness (the sounds we hear in words). Our middle school have implemented Equipped For Reading Success, a comprehensive step by step program for developing Phonemic Awareness and fluent word recognition by David A Kilpatrick.

Reading at home – what can you do to assist?

We strongly encourage students to regularly read at home. Depending upon students' needs this may involve students being read to, having a parent or guardian listen to a student read or a student reading independently.

We are offering two Parent Information Sessions F-6 on the Science of Learning, Tuesday 20th February 2pm and 6:30pm. We strongly encourage you to attend as we will be providing more information about when and how we will commence take-home books.

Science of Learning F-6 Attendance Form

Please complete this form if you plan to attend.

Kindest regards,

Gavan.

SAFETY

RESPONSIBILITY

RESPECT

To start the year off, the students at St Joseph's have been learning about our core values.

This year we have updated our whole body listening as we know that not everyone uses their body to learn in the same way they do.

Our teaching focus has been on reinforcing:

Respect

I follow the instructions of adults by using whole body listening. We know we are using whole body listening when my:

- body is calm, foot tapping, hands fidgeting, pacing, bouncing, standing, sitting on a cushion or away from others.
- eyes on the speaker or possibly looking down at the floor, ground or board
- lips may be close, mouth humming, chewing or asking questions

- ears are listening
- brain is thinking about what is being said
- heart is caring and shows respect

Safety:

I move to and from classes safely by:

- following the bell routine (when the music starts move calmly to your line, go to the toilet, sitting down when the bell goes in roll order)
- moving safely and quietly
- asking an adult for help
- holding equipment as I move
- keeping hands, feet and objects to myself
